

EDITORIAL

The year 2010 ends with 21st volume of eJournal IFCC. During this year, as usually, we have published four issues that contained seven reviews, eight original papers, two letters to the Editor and one article submitted by the participant of the Professional Scientific Exchange Programme. This was not an easy year because the submission of articles to the Journal is very limited. We work to increase the visibility of the Journal and to improve the quality of its contents however it is hard to say that we have achieved a success.

As an Editor-in-chief I would like to encourage all the readers of eJIFCC and members of the IFCC to submit your reports of different kinds : reviews, original pieces of work, short articles written on the basis of interesting posters which were presented during congresses and meetings, opinions and letters to the Editor. The free on-line availability of the eJournal IFCC makes an excellent possibility to be recognized worldwide.

I take this occasion to wish all of the IFCC members a Happy and Joyful Christmas. May this season refresh your spirit and bring you inspiration and happiness.
